Area Residents March . . . Development Plan Draws Opposition

By BILL EUTZY
Star Staff Writer

Approximately 50 residents of Hillside Estates marched in a steady rain Sunday afternoon to protest a townhouse development proposal by Austin Realty Co., at 77th and Lexington Ave.

At issue is a request to the City Council by the Austin Co. to amend a community unit plan to allow construction of 48 townhouses on the 4.3-acre site. The council had previously approved a plan to construct four 12-plexes at the location.

Area residents have expressed dissatisfaction with both plans, contending they were told by Austin salesmen at the time they purchased their homes that the site was to have been used for open space and park land.

OK'd By Planners

The City-County Planning Commission is recommending approval of the request, although Planning Director Doug Brodgen is not. He contends the apartment plan provides for larger open spaces, whereas the proposed townhouse plan eliminates these areas.

Sunday's marchers — carrying signs reading "give me a place to play," "give us parks, not multiple dwellings" and "traffic and kids don't mix" — moved through the neighborhood for nearly 30 minutes, picking up added support from many of the homes they passed.

Leighton Wessel, of 1736 Bedloe Ct., told The Star that either of the proposals would "severely restrict the amount of recreational area promised to many residents by Austin Realty salesmen."

Eliminates Parks

Gordon Fields, of 7424 Aylesworth, added that the proposals would "eliminate parks altogether."

Fields said the City Council will be asked Tuesday to reconsider the entire community unit proposal for the area, noting it had not been reviewed since 1969, when there were few of the present residents in the area.

He said that to date 73 homes in the community have been contacted, and, of that number, 62 have indicated support to cutting down the number of multiple-unit dwellings on the site. He added that over $700 had been raised to undertake whatever legal steps are necessary to oppose the present alternate plans.

While conceding that some dwellings should be allowed on the site, residents are particularly opposed to the 12-plex plan which would have a double row of four 6-car garages abutting their property.

Not Entire Area

Gerald L. Schleich, president-treasurer of Austin Realty Co., said Sunday night he did not believe any Austin salesperson ever told anyone that the entire area had been set aside as park area.

"There has always been plans for 48 units on the site," he said, "and there was to be park space in that area — but not the entire area."

Asked if area opposition would have any bearing on Austin's plans for the area, Schleich said: "It will."

'Ample Space'

"We'll probably go ahead with the plan previously approved (four 12-plexes) which offers an ample amount of open space," he said.

When informed that Sunday afternoon marchers claimed a survey of the neighborhood showed a majority of people now opposed to any building in the area, Schleich said there are "some opposed to any type of development."

"The more you try to create good will, the more opportunity you create for dissent," he added.

Kissinger Broadens Quest For Settlement In Indochina

Saigon (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger broadened the quest for an Indochina peace settlement Sunday in a round of commuter conferences with the presidents of South Vietnam and Cambodia. Then on Monday morning he met here with President Nguyen Van Thieu for the sixth time in five days.

The U.S. presidential adviser conferred with Thieu for two hours Monday. He had met with Thieu Sunday morning before flying to Phnom Penh for a three-hour conference with President Lon Nol. Later on Sunday Kissinger commuted back to Saigon for another meeting with the South Vietnamese president that lasted nearly two hours past dusk.

In a related development, Premier Hang Thun Hak announced shortly before Kissinger's visit to Phnom Penh that the Cambodian government had "reached agreement in principle" for peace talks with the Khmer Rouge, the Communist-led Cambodian insurgents allied with the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

Only a few months ago, the Cambodian government had refused to acknowledge the existence of the Khmer Rouge. But the Khmer Rouge strength has increased from a little more than 5,000 last March to about 40,000 now.

The premier of Laos, Prince Souvanna Phouma, said in Paris that peace may come soon in Indochina and that negotiations in his country had got off to a good start. The Pathet Lao is the adversary of Souvanna's government.

The prince made his remarks in a statement at the airport while en route to the United States. Before leaving Laos, the prince conferred with one of Kissinger's aides.

Kissinger has held five conferences with Thieu since he arrived last Wednesday night, underscoring the intensity and seriousness of the peace talks. North Vietnam's premier, Pham Van Dong, said in an interview with Newsweek magazine that the three-way secret negotiations "are in an extremely important phase."

The U.S. Embassy declined to say what Kissinger's next move would be. His schedule appeared flexible. There was no immediate word when he would return to Washington to report to President Nixon.

But the flurry of conferences, Dong's statements and reports that some military bases in the United States were on special alert in preparation for possible evacuation of American prisoners of war from North Vietnam touched off a new round of speculation that some kind of a settlement may be in the works.

Time magazine said that United States and North Vietnamese negotiators in Paris had agreed in principle last week to a settlement providing for a cease-fire, formation of a new South Vietnamese government and national elections.

Newsweek said it learned that the United States and North Vietnam had reached agreement in Paris on ending the war, with one point still unsettled: whether an interim government should be made up of Thieu's followers and the Viet Cong or a three-way government of Thieu, neutralists and Viet Cong. Thieu has said he is opposed to the latter.

Newsweek also said that France would act as a neutral supervisory power to guarantee that honest elections would follow.

NU Innocents Back Hansen

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Innocents Society at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has parted from its usual stance of political neutrality to endorse the candidacy of NU Regent Kermit Hansen in his election race against Clifton Batchelder.

"Although we don't endorse all of the regents' actions during the past three years, we do feel that Kermit Hansen has generally acted in the interests of academic excellence while his opponent has taken a negative attitude toward the university's academic growth," the senior men's honorary society said in a prepared statement.

The Innocents said that while the organization has "traditionally remained politically neutral on all but the most salient issues," it views the upcoming election in the Second Regents District as "important in determining the growth of the university."

"We believe that the development of the five-year plan, the current review of the university operations and bylaws, and the development of a comprehensive system with a president and three campus chancellors should be commended," the statement said.

Noting that "many people have voiced concern about the Nebraska system's academic standing," the statement said:

"It appears that the NU Board of Regents and the NU administration have moved toward bolstering and strengthening the institution's programs."

"In fact, 96% of the 202 graduate students who received doctoral degrees in 1971 have employment consistent with their educational credentials."

"We believe it is ludicrous to level criticisms at any segment of the university system concerning the university's plan for academic progress."

"Yet Hansen's opponent has done just that on a number of occasions.

"Given the budgetary constraints, we believe the Board of Regents and the administration have done a reasonably commendable job."

The statement said Batchelder "has contended that the university should exist as a training ground to provide employees for other institutions."

"We believe that a university must fulfill this function but that an educational institution must also do more."

As an example, the Innocents said, "research . . . is the key to understanding and grappling with the problems of our society and the university should continue to foster this worthwhile pursuit."

To improve the quality of education, said the Innocents, "we find it imperative that administrators, teachers and students not have to work in an atmosphere of constant threat and fear."

Leftists Seek Release Of 13

. . . BLAST THREATENED

Ankara, Turkey (AP) — Four young Turkish terrorists hijacked an airliner with 77 other persons aboard Sunday, wounding the pilot and a passenger on the forced trip from Turkey to Bulgaria.

After landing at the Sofia airport in a snowstorm, the hijackers threatened to blow up the Boeing 707 unless Turkey freed 13 leftist prisoners and met demands for reforms by noon Monday. Informed sources said the Turkish government decided to refuse all of the demands but not to oppose political asylum for the hijackers in Bulgaria.

"Our struggle is a revolutionary struggle," one of the four said at the airport, according to the Bulgarian news agency BTA. "It has been our purpose to free our comrades. We warn that we are not going to make any concessions concerning our terms . . ."

Other Demands

The other demands were for repeal of a law prohibiting workers to strike in Turkey, improvement of peasants' lives, better conditions in universities and a promise not to make any "antidemocratic" changes in the Turkish constitution.

The news agency said the hijackers demanded political asylum in Bulgaria for themselves and the 13 prisoners. An apparently conflicting report from a Turkish government spokesman said the terrorists wanted to go to Cuba.

The terrorists seized the aircraft as it flew from Istanbul to Ankara. They opened fire at one point, slightly wounding the chief pilot and a passenger. All on the plane were Turkish.

Tense Confrontation

A tense confrontation developed as Bulgarian security forces surrounded the plane after it landed at 8:15 a.m. in a light snowstorm.

The Turkish Cabinet met to consider the demands of the hijackers, presented to the Turkish ambassador to Bulgaria at the airport.

The semi-official Anatolian news agency quoting Bulgarian sources said one of those the terrorists want released is Ziya Yilmaz, an activist in the Turkish Peoples Liberation Army whose death sentence awaits final approval by the Parliament. Yilmaz was convicted of involvement in the kidnapping of the Israeli consul general in Istanbul in May 1971.

The Turkish news agency said the terrorists carried explosives which they threatened to set off if their demands were not met.

A Turkish government spokesman, Ismail Arar, told newsmen the terrorists demanded to be flown to Cuba.

Almost Exact Repetition

The scenario was an almost exact repetition of a hijacking May 3 when four leftists forced a Turkish airlines DC9 with 59 persons aboard to Sofia.

They demanded release of three condemned leftist terrorists and political asylum. The Turkish government refused to release the terrorists, who were hanged three days later.

Turkey had urged Bulgaria to give the hijackers asylum to save the lives of the passengers and crew. They are now interned and awaiting trial in Sofia. The plane and passengers were released after 27 hours.

'Some Understanding'

Arar said that Turkey is hoping Bulgaria's Communist government will show "the same help and understanding" in this case.

Bulgaria and Turkey, neighbors at southeast edge of Europe, have been on cordial terms.

The Bulgarian agency said "all efforts are being made to settle the incident."

It added that hot meals had been delivered twice to the plane but that the atmosphere around the plane, which was "under the complete control of the terrorists" was tense.

The agency said several passengers, including two mothers with children, were allowed to leave the plane for health reasons along with the two wounded men.

Omaha Car Dealer May Contest Law Regulating Ads

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

An Omaha car dealer has disclosed that he will try to have a recently-enacted law regulating advertising by the auto industry stricken from the books either by the courts or by the Legislature.

In an interview following Friday's meeting of the Motor Vehicle Dealers' Licensing Board, Jim Earp called the advertising code "a special law" which has "to be challenged in court."

"Yes," he told The Star, "I am considering taking the law to court. As yet, I haven't decided how to proceed. I'm going to try to enlist the support of the Nebraska New Car Dealers Association."

"I'm going to ask Bob McDowell (the association's executive vice president) about filing the suit through the association," he said.

The other alternative being considered would be to have the 1973 Legislature repeal the act.

"I've talked to one senator who said he would definitely introduce it," he said.

"Fair-Minded"

However, he declined to identify the particular senator, other than to say he was "fair-minded" and from Omaha.

Earp has run into difficulties under the advertising code for his claim that, "Nobody but nobody undersells Jim Earp Chrysler-Plymouth-Volvo." He has since been told to halt ads making that claim.

In general, the advertising code forbids such practices as advertising a car's price without including all charges, making such statements as "write your own deal," downgrading competitors, claiming the car is being sold at or below cost and saying that everyone can be financed.

Any dealer who is found to be in violation of the code can be found guilty of a misdemeanor, fined up to $100 and have his license suspended or revoked.

Earp objected to the law because, in his words, "a grocer can advertise that 'nobody but nobody undersells our Jonathan apples,' but because I'm in the automobile business I can't."

'Not Fair'

"It's not fair," he stated.

He also disclosed that at least one board member, Julius Novak of Omaha, might be joining him in the lawsuit.

Although Novak alluded to the fact that he might become a party to a lawsuit during the meeting, afterwards he denied that he had said anything to indicate that.

The law as it stands, Earp said, has caused many dealers a "good deal of remorse."

"I'm confident 90% of the dealers would favor repealing the law," he said. During the legislative session, Earp said the bill was hurried through and most of the dealers were misinformed about what the bill would do.

Not Good

The law has not been good for the industry, he said.

"Your car dealers didn't get where they are by being dishonest and lying. It kills me not to be able to say I'm number one if I back it up."

"We've got enough consumer protection laws. I don't feel the public in Nebraska has been cheated by any means," he said.

Earlier in the day, the board discussed the problem of misleading car advertisements since it arose recently before a Legislative committee. The New Car Dealers Association is attempting to get a clause reinstated into law which would make the news media jointly responsible with the dealers for any false advertising.

Representatives of the mda appeared to oppose the proposal.

Washington — As presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger continued to seek President Nguyen Van Thieu's support of a peace settlement that would be acceptable to Washington, Hanoi and Saigon, comments by officials in all three capitals Sunday seemed to indicate that agreement was close on the terms for a ceasefire as the first stage of a settlement. But Hanoi and Saigon seemed far apart on the kind of political alignment that would emerge in South Vietnam once the fighting stopped. And Kissinger was reportedly trying to assure Thieu of continued American support while pressuring him to agree to a formula that would allow participation of the Viet Cong in post-war Vietnamese politics. (More on Page 1.)

Kissinger Continues To Seek Thieu's Support

Thieu Preparing Plans

Saigon — President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered his government to start preparing contingency plans for a ceasefire more than two weeks ago, according to a high South Vietnamese official. However, the official, who said he thought Thieu would "never accept" a settlement involving a major political concession to the Communists, reported that the president had urged his cabinet to stand firmly with him in opposing any settlement that would stop the fighting only temporarily.

Nixon Praises Veterans

Washington — In his second nationwide radio speech of the weekend, President Nixon used a Veterans Day theme to praise "the young Americans who have served in Vietnam" and to outline his administration's achievements on their behalf. As usual, the President did not mention Sen. George McGovern by name, but the address was laced with occasional attacks on positions generally identified with the Democratic nominee. (More on Page 2.)

White House Submits Question

Washington — A question was reportedly submitted by the White House to confront Sen. George McGovern when he appeared on a nationally televised interview program. The Democratic nominee, who has repeatedly challenged President Nixon to debate him, expressed surprise when he was told a question concerning his campaign rhetoric had been submitted by a White House official, but he answered it. He denied the question's premise that he had likened President Nixon to Adolf Hitler but he said he stood by his characterization of the Vietnam bombing as "the most barbaric thing that has happened... since he Nazis were in power" in World War II. "And I believe that," he said. "I don't retract that for one minute." (More on Page 2.)

School Guards To Be Hired

New York — The New York City Board of Education plans to allocate $6 million this week to hire at least 1,200 school security guards. This disclosure followed reports that six teachers were robbed in their classrooms last week. In the last two weeks at least nine teachers have been robbed, all but one in the presence of their pupils and two in violent attacks.

Demo Security Tightened

Washington — Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign headquarters in Washington has tightened its security precautions, including daily checks for telephone taps and listening devices, since the alleged bugging of the Democrat's Watergate offices in June, according to members of McGovern's staff. But the officials strongly deny Republican charges that they have engaged in or even contemplated "offensive security" operations against the Republicans.

Organized Crime Grows

New York — An extensive study of Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant area has concluded that organized crime has achieved "sustained and dynamic growth" there largely because of "a breakdown" in law enforcement in the area. The $69,000 study financed by the Justice Department, says that Bedford-Stuyvesant residents spent $88.3 million on gambling and illegal drugs in 1970, compared to $14.9 million in 1963.

Nixon Stresses Opposition To Surrender And Amnesty

Washington — President Nixon told Vietnam war veterans and their families Sunday "we are not going to make a mockery of their sacrifice by surrendering to the enemy, or by offering amnesty to draft dodgers and deserters."

"The few hundred who chose to desert America must pay a price for their choice," he said.

Nixon delivered a Veterans Day radio address from his Camp David, Md., retreat before returning to Washington in preparation for a New York state campaign sortie Monday.

Without mentioning Sen. George McGovern, Nixon emphasized war and defense-related issues where his views clash with those of his Democratic opponent. The speech, carried by the NBC, CBS and Mutual networks, was paid for by the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President.

"One of the things I have worked hardest for as President has been to keep America strong..." Nixon said. "There is no such thing as a retreat to peace..."

"Some of the voices we hear today calling for a weak America, for an isolationist America, are little more than echoes of past blunders."

He said "such misguided thinking" led the United States unprepared into two world wars by encouraging aggressors to think they could go unpunished.

Because the country is strong and prepared now, Nixon said, "we have been able to make dramatic progress towards arms reductions; towards better relations with the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China; towards the first full generation of peace our country has known in this century."

Drug abuse, he said, "is a social problem, not a military problem." But he said an unprecedented effort to treat Vietnam veterans with drug problems, including a sixfold increase in specialized centers, has been launched. Moreover, he said, a massive educational program the armed services "is helping the armed forces combat successfully a problem not of their own making."

Nixon said the government has surpassed its goal of placing 1 million Vietnam veterans in jobs or training by last June 30. The number so placed was 13 million, he said, and the goal for the succeeding year is the same.

Nixon appealed to employers to hire veterans because they "have proven their ability to work... they know the importance of discipline and... the meaning of responsibility."

"Hiring veterans isn't just patriotic," he said, "it makes plain good business sense."

While he paid tribute to veterans of all wars, Nixon pointed much of his speech at those returned from southeast Asia.

"The vast majority of Vietnam veterans have come out of this war with a clean slate and a record of honor..." he said.

"They stand today just as tall as their fathers who fought at Normandy, Iwo Jima and Inchon."

Nixon said that under his administration average compensation benefits for veterans have gone up 20% and pensions 16%, educating and training benefits will have been increased 70% when he signs a newly-passed law.

Boggs Search Is Continuing

Anchorage, Alaska — Tracking and backtracking, rescue airplanes dodged low-flying clouds Sunday in the sixth day of a search for missing House Majority Leader Hale Boggs and three other men.

Two jet reconnaissance planes went aloft with 52 other aircraft, but visual search was partially blocked by clouds over "two-thirds to three-quarters of the primary search area," officials said.

The massive wilderness search began last Monday when Boggs, 58; Rep. Nick Begich of Alaska, 40; Russell L. Brown, 37, a Begich aide; and Don E. Jonz, the pilot, disappeared on a flight from here to Juneau, 560 miles to the southeast.

White House Sends Question To Sen. McGovern

Washington — Sen. George McGovern said Sunday South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu threatened last year to resign if U.S. military and economic aid to this government were even reduced.

"I think we ought to take him up on that," McGovern said.

He was interviewed for an hour on the ABC Issues and Answers television-radio program.

The Democratic candidate, who has been urging President Nixon to debate him, found himself faced with a question which he was told was submitted by the White House and commented that Nixon is afraid to come on such a program in person with McGovern and ask his own questions.

The question related to McGovern's comparison of U.S. bombing in Vietnam with Adolf Hitler's policies.

McGovern took the occasion to pose a question for Nixon — why the President has not offered any explanation of the break-in to Democratic national headquarters by persons associated with Nixon's campaign.

The exchange came when correspondent Frank Reynolds asked McGovern a question Reynolds said had been sent to ABC by the White House.

"I think this is really an interesting development here that I should come on a program to be interviewed and have questions submitted by the White House," the South Dakota senator said. "Isn't it interesting that the President himself is afraid, apparently to come on this program with me or to come on any other television program and raise his own questions. He knows I would have some to ask him."

McGovern said that, when he was in South Vietnam in September 1971 Thieu told him that he would resign from office at the first sign the United States was abandoning him.

He told me directly... that directly... that even if we reduce American military and economic aid that he would resign," McGovern said. "I think we ought to take him up on that."

McGovern said he thinks Thieu would refuse to participate in any coalition government involving a Communist representative.

"If we withdraw our support for him," McGovern said, "I have no doubt at all that within a matter of hours Gen. Thieu would take care of the problem and he would be gone."

The question sent to McGovern from the White House was one of six or seven, according to Peggy Whelan, producer of the program. They were sent by Al Snyder, an assistant to White House Communications Director Herb Klein, she said.

They accompanied a transcript of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally's political telecast of last Friday which ABC had requested from the White House.

The only one of the questions put to McGovern by the ABC interviewers referred to McGovern statements which the President's supporters contend defame Nixon by comparing him to Hitler.

McGovern said he had never "referred to President Nixon as an Adolf Hitler."

But he said he stands by his statement that "the dropping of several million tons of bombs on the civilian population of Indochina is the most barbaric thing that has happened since World War II."

since the Nazis were in power... the killing, the wounding, the making homeless of some 6 million South Vietnamese people largely by American aerial bombardment."

And he said, "I personally hold Mr. Nixon responsible for the bombing."

"My question" to the President, McGovern said on the air, is "why have we had no explanation from the President of the United States about his seven agents, campaigning for his re-election, who invaded the Democratic National Committee?" Seven men were indicted in connection with the break-in and alleged bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate apartment complex here last June.

"If seven of my top assistants had been caught burglarizing the Republican National Committee and had been indicted by a grand jury, I know that I would have been held responsible. I might just as well have dropped out of the race. But for some reason or other... some people put Mr. Nixon above the battle."

County Foes Basically Agree On Issues

(Editors Note: This is the seventh of a series of articles about candidates who will appear on the Nov. 7 election ballot.)

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Uniformity in hiring practices, exercising the responsibilities of a board of equalization by the commissioners and the county's taking over the operation of Lancaster Manor are among the issues on which the two candidates for Lancaster County Commissioner basically agree.

Democrat Jim Studnicka, who defeated incumbent William Grossman in the primary, will face Republican Jan Gauger in what observers feel may be one of the more interesting races in Lancaster County commissioner history.

Studnicka, 34, a Havelock businessman and an unsuccessful candidate for the Legislature in 1964, contends that many of the county problems are the result of lack of communication between the commissioners and the other elected county officials.

Uniform Policies Needed

He proposes that centralized purchasing and uniform bidding policies are the "most important vehicle towards establishing uniform county policies."

"Passing the buck of responsibility by saying the commissioners have no control does not solve the problem if there is no attempt made at controls," Studnicka said in reference to the commissioners' response to criticism for nepotism and lack of uniformity in county office practices.

Studnicka further stated that passage of the appropriate legislation which would allow the county to initiate a merit plan for county employees could avoid "a good deal of the back-patting" in county government.

mittees but is making her first bid for public office, contends that establishment of a personnel system for the county would eliminate the lack of uniformity between county offices.

She noted that although it is true that the county commissioners could not force other officials to use a personnel system, "I believe that the force of public opinion and efficiency for citizens and officials alike would encourage 100% utilization."

She said she would propose contracting with the city personnel department to provide personnel service for the county once a processional survey which she recommended at budget time is completed.

Appeals System Favored

Mrs. Gauger said she also would favor an appeals system for the county to protect county employee who are terminated.

Both candidates agree that improvement is needed in equalization of property values.

Studnicka contends that part of the problem of "arbitrarily assessing property" rests with the county assessor while another problem is that the Legislature "has never defined the exact percentage to be put on the seven criteria of assessing property values."

Legislation wanted

He proposes a legislative bill establishing exact percentages along with a data processing system but the county commissioners, sitting at a board of equalization, "should not be remiss in its obligation."

He said the board should take each and every case as a part of their work load and make every attempt to honestly consider any inequity.

Mrs. Gauger said she would favor setting up a task force or advisory committee to aid the board in setting policies to insure that the board's obligation of insuring fair and even-handed application of the law is carried out.

"No Rubber Stamp"

"The board should never become a rubber stamp to the assessor's action," she said, noting that some sort of spot checking should be carried out and the taxpayer should be advised of his right to appeal.

"Most taxpayers I talk to do not understand their legal rights of appeal or the timetable of when and how to appeal," she said.

In connection with the management of the much-discussed county-owned nursing home, Lancaster Manor, Mrs. Gauger said she felt the welfare the patients should be the most important consideration in deciding what type of management is most desirable.

Cost Factor Second

She said that cost should be the second most important consideration in determining whether the county should operate the nursing facility or hire a management firm.

"I would prefer that the county operate Lancaster Manor and hire a qualified administrator so that the tax money involved goes to provide the very best services the county can afford," she said.

However, she noted, that if some private management firm can propose terms which will assure equal or better services for the same costs, "I would be surprised, but receptive."

Studnicka said he agrees with Chauncey Barney and the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council that a board should be established but that the commissioners should retain direct control and responsibility for the management of the manor.

"Although I feel that an administrator is the better route to go at the moment, I would not be opposed to a nursing home firm contract as long as it is not a financial burden on the taxpayers," he said.

He noted that a great deal of study should precede any final decision and caution should be the "watchword in regard to Lancaster Manor's future."

American Murdered By Bandits

Waseca, Minn. (UPI) —Two brothers who left here two years ago to walk around the world were attacked by bandits in Afghanistan Saturday night and the younger of the two was shot to death, their family was told Sunday.

The State Department informed relatives that John Kunst, 28, was killed and his brother David, 33, was wounded when the bandits attacked their campsite.

The two brothers began their walk in Waseca in June, 1970, for the benefit of the United Nations Children's Fund. They were traveling through Afghanistan on their way to China when attacked.

The State Department reported Sunday that David is in satisfactory condition at a U.S. aid hospital in Afghanistan. Both brothers suffered gunshot wounds.

A spokesman said the men were camped on a rugged section of road about 30 miles east of the Afghanistan capital of Kabul when they were attacked. The spokesman said highway bandits are common in that section of the country.

The two brothers had completed over half of their world walk. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Al Kunst of Clear Lake, Iowa.

Oklahoma Town Is Damaged By Two Pre-Dawn Twisters

Idabel, Okla. (AP) — A pre-dawn tornado — or possibly two twisters — struck a damaging blow to this southeastern Oklahoma community of 8,500 Sunday, destroying or heavily damaging several homes and businesses in a town which already had suffered property damage caused by floods less than a year ago.

Miraculously, no serious injuries were reported as the storms struck at about 3:30 a.m. while most residents were asleep.

One twister skirted down Oklahoma 37 west of the city, destroying three or four homes before settling on the Idabel business district where it unroofed several business establishments, broke out plate glass windows and sent debris whirling for hundreds of yards.

A tornado also struck south of the city, apparently at about the same time, demolishing a trailer house being used as a temporary home for a construction firm. Another mobile home was also reported destroyed.

Businesses Damaged

Downtown businesses heavily damaged included two liquor stores, two grocery stores, a Masonic lodge and the temporary city hall quarters.

Mayor Charles McGowan said it was impossible to assess the amount of damage but that it would run "well into the thousands of dollars."

The entire city was without electrical power early Sunday and the sewer plant was out of operation for some time.

The violent weather occurred after a night of torrential rains in southeastern Oklahoma. It was Dec. 16, 1971, when 13 inches of rain fell on Idabel, causing major flooding.

Mayor McGowan described the temporary city hall quarters as "a mess" with city records scattered all about and soaked in water.

He said the roof was ripped off the building and it was six inches deep in water Sunday morning. Some of the records will be lost forever, he said.

The permanent city hall building is about 80% complete, and Mayor McGowan said that, luckily, he didn't believe it suffered much damage.

McGowan said he definitely believes the damage was caused by two funnels, noting they ran parallel about a mile apart. He described the twister that hit the business area as "being just like a yo-yo, going up and down."

"It was really weird the way it happened. I don't think one tornado could have done it. We didn't know there had been twin funnels until we got to looking around this morning and found the house trailer south of town. Huge trees were down everywhere and the trailer used by the construction firm was completely destroyed. You'd never believe it was a trailer home."

Homes Destroyed

The mayor said that "three or four" homes west of the city along Oklahoma 37 were "basically destroyed."

S. Korea Orders Society Clean-Up

Seoul (UPI) — South Korean authorities ordered a sweeping crackdown on avant garde artists, prostitutes, go-go dancers and men with long hair.

The order to clean up South Korean society came from Attorney General Lee Bong Sun two days after President Park Chung Hee put the country under martial law as a prelude to sweeping political reforms whose precise nature still has not been made clear.

"All in all we were very fortunate," he said, "but it's kind of disheartening. We had that terrible flood here last December."

The only injury reported was to a five-year-old boy who had his face cut in a mobile home.

Said Mayor McGowan: "I'm sure people are quite sick looking at their businesses, but we were very fortunate there were no deaths."

Most residents of the town, which is nestled at the foothills of the Ouachita Mountains about 25 miles west of the Arkansas line and about 15 miles north of the Texas border, did not know the extent of damage until awaking Sunday morning.

Charles Amerson, a fireman, was in the fire station. "You could hear the roar of the thing. It came right by us," he said.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM DOBLER

These are the days when seekers of public office are out among the people, shaking as many hands as they can get to in a day. So the National Geographic Society for one of its news bulletins, set out to determine the origin of the practice of shaking hands.

It concluded that the "best-known explanation is that the right hand traditionally holds weapons, so in the dim past an extended empty right hand showed peaceful intent. Another theory suggests that people got into the habit of clasping right hands as a sign of assistance."

Whatever are the origins of the practice, it is by now a well established one, as are many things associated with the hand. The hand is not only an important part of our bodies but has served as a symbolic thing in most of recorded history.

When Christ died on the cross, He is recorded as having said to His Father, "Into Thy hands I commend My spirit." Thus, the hands were meant to portray a protective situation, a condition of ultimate fulfillment.

The Bible contains many other references to hands. Pilate can be remembered as washing his hands of the blood of Christ, another symbolic measure in which the hands are meant to measure the guilt or innocence of a man.

And one of the Gospel writers tells us that if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off. In other words, no sacrifice is too great to make for the cause of a Christian life and its ultimate rewards.

Hands have been used for centuries by writers, artists, statesmen, etc. It is often said that drawing of a human hand is a most difficult task for some artists, a testimonial to the intricate nature of this common part of the human body.

Shakespeare in Henry IV spoke of the cold hand of death and in King John of "mortality's strong hand." Apparently, Shakespeare liked the association of death and hand, the neat way in which you could wrap up death in terms of hands.

Other writers, especially poets, have considered the hand a thing of beauty, especially the hands of women. Somebody more than a hundred years ago, a fellow named William Ross Wallace, said that the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world.

He may not have been a women's liberationist but he knew the real power of women.

As youngsters in school, most of us should remember Longfellow's village smith and his "large and sinewy hands." That paints a very good picture of the smith, if Longfellow had not described him in any further way.

You can picture people with sinewy hands, with leathery hands, with delicate hands, with gnarled hands, with fat hands, with slender hands, etc.

Hopefully, not many of us have to live hand to mouth but we know full well exactly what the term conveys. The man with an iron hand is probably a stern ruler of some kind and the guy with hat in hand is either just arriving or on the way out.

We all know that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, although you might not get too far in life if you stick too closely to that conservative philosophy. If you can catch the bird in the bush and keep the two in your hand, you have improved yourself by 50%, rather a good risk factor, it would seem.

Sometimes we are impressed by things untouched by human hands and other times we pay a premium for things that are handmade. Along the same line, we have things that are, on one hand, one way and on the other hand, another way—a literary cop-out.

Hand-in-hand is a peaceful thing but hand-to-hand means mortal combat. And you have to hand it to anyone who can parlay such a simple word as "hand" into even this extensive an article.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Effort By Individuals
Toward Energy Crisis

NEW YORK — Brace yourselves, folks: the government, in its wisdom, has solved the energy crisis. Or, rather, it is going to let us do it.

Nothing to it, really. All we have to do is "change our habits."

Which is Washington's way of saying the whole problem will go away if Americans will just stop living it up the way they do.

Take those millions of automobiles and furnaces and air-conditioners we're so fond of. Very bad. They gobble up fuel reserves, you see. To the point where the crunch is not that far off. (Would you believe 1980?)

And so, the Office of Emergency Preparedness, rather than concentrate solely on finding new sources of supply, has put out a report "suggesting" we have a go at it on our own.

Lake maybe parking the family heap in the garage and using bicycles more... giving up those long Sunday drives for recreation closer to home... and riding the bus to grandmother's house instead of hopping a plane.

Little things like that.

What they're really trying to say is, we must break off our national love affair with the automobile before the whole country runs out of gas. We must also put aside our passion for push-button electrical gadgets before the power companies run out of push.

The OEP wants us all to use more car pools... ship freight by rail instead of truck... pay higher parking fees and highway tolls... forego long vacation trips... and be willing to sweat a little on a hot day.

It has a few tips for architects, too. They're going to have to "change their habits" in designing houses, schools, office buildings and warehouses to use heat and electricity more efficiently.

If we all get in line (and the OEP admits to a few doubts about the "acceptability" of its recommendations), we could save enough oil and gas and kilowatts to avert that national emergency the conservationists keep warning us about.

And if we don't... well, the OEP has no authority to set policy, you understand, but the report goes to people who do. And it did mention something about higher taxes and rising prices. (So what else is new?)

One way, according to a group of New York architects, environmentalists and lighting experts, is to cut down on all those bright lights in buildings nowadays.

People only need half that much they say, and the reduction would not only chop some $3.5 billion off our national light bill, it would save enough electricity to light up the whole country for 90 days every year.

This should cheer the OEP. Up till now, the report says, the public hasn't been much help. ("It has an almost-total disregard of energy considerations.") Unquote.

How, it wonders, can we expect Congress to tangle with the powerful automobile, highway and utility interests if we, as voters, don't insist they take "decisive action"? (an even then, don't hold your breath, friends; just go out and buy that bicycle.)

This may be more than just a "save-a-war" slogan. It sounds like "kill a life style to save a country." And I hereby promise to double my efforts to remember to turn off my electric typewriter at night. (That might even save a marriage.)

The 'New Majority' Rules

On their face, some of the principles laid out by President Nixon in his Saturday political address to the nation are hard to argue with. He talked about taking power away "from the bureaucrats in Washington" and returning it to the people "so they can decide what is best for themselves." And he defended what he called the "new majority" in America, people who oppose higher taxes, object to seeing their children taken from neighborhood schools and oppose numerical quotas in politics and industry that would close the doors of opportunity to persons of ability.

The new majority should not be condemned for being "insensitive" or "racist," the President said. Nixon added, "there is no reason to feel guilty about wanting to enjoy what you get and get what you earn; about wanting your children in good schools close to home; or about wanting it to be judged fairly on your ability. Those are not values to be ashamed of; those are values to be proud of; those are values I shall always stand up for when they come under attack."

Most people, if they think about it, believe that people do a good job of governing themselves and it sounds pretty good when a leader talks about taking the power away from the bureaucrats. But looking at it from the standpoint of wanting to improve society, there is really no need to fear big government. It gets things done. Local government doesn't get things done as well or as fast as a rule. Things stagnate. Which is fine for those who have and not so fine for those who don't have.

To be judged fairly, to want the best for your children, to enjoy the fruits of your labor — those are values most people cherish.

But there are some — many — people who are not judged fairly, whose children don't attend good schools and don't have the same opportunities as other children to grow up happily and lead productive lives and there are people who can't enjoy the fruits of their labor because they have been frozen out of jobs.

Those are the people the President should be concerned about. The new majority can take care of itself. Nixon is playing it safe. It doesn't take any guts at all to tell people in the minority that you will reflect the majority's views. A real leader's concerns would be elsewhere.

Saigon Out In The Cold

The Vietnam peace negotiations being in such a state of flux, it would not be surprising if by now the parties to the talks had each turned 180 degrees from positions held last week and over the weekend.

As things stood then, President Thieu of South Vietnam and his national security council reportedly had rejected any interim agreement for a limited peace in Indochina with a lasting settlement to come after the United States has absented itself from the area.

And President Nixon reportedly had rejected, with no reason given, a proposal by North Vietnam for a cease-fire before the U.S. presidential elections. North Vietnam apparently wanted the cease-fire to avoid "heavy military pressure" from the U.S. should Nixon defeat Sen. McGovern.

Still, even with everybody saying no, sources in Poland and France confidently predict that a peace settlement is almost in the bag if it isn't all the way in the bag and neatly tied up already this morning.

France Works Behind Scenes At Peace-Making;
Sainteny Arranged First Kissinger Secret Meeting

Paris — The French role in seeking to accommodate and even facilitate peace in Indochina has been consistently invisible, discreet and sometimes effective. Neither this role nor its objectives are understood by many Americans.

The principal goal is to end a savage war between France's greatest ally and the North Vietnamese, whom France respects, having both administered them and been defeated by them. The ultimate aim is to establish a neutralized area in which French influence can insure that Western interests are not wholly discarded because of a power vacuum exposed to China and Russia.

Apart from serving as host to the stalemated official peace negotiations, France has played an intermittent but occasionally important part behind the scenes. The successive chiefs of the Quai Dorsay Asian department, Etienne Manach, now ambassador to Peking, and Henri Froment-Meurice, are carefully professional diplomats and by no means anti-American although they have often disagreed with Washington policy.

Throughout the Paris talks, they gave advice to both sides, when asked, and transmitted messages with maximum objectivity. Moreover, a vital unofficial role was played by another Frenchman, Jean Sainteny who was responsible for helping start the secret parleys between Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, the Hanoi Politburo member.

Sainteny, a banker with long Asian experience, was parachuted from Kunning, China, to Vietnam as head of De Gaulle's mission there in 1945 and, incidentally, was given a bad time by hostile American officers. He has never allowed that sad experience to mar his friendship for the U.S.A.

Because Sainteny signed the first accord between France and Ho Chi Minh in 1946, many Americans including Bobby Kennedy and Ambassador Averell Harriman elicited his opinions in their search for peace. Richard Nixon came to know him before he was elected president and in 1966 asked him for advice on how to deal with North Vietnam.

The banker had also become a personal friend of Kissinger who taught Madame Sainteny at Harvard summer school. During one of the Frenchman's frequent visits to Washington, Kissinger asked if he thought it possible to hold secret negotiations parallel to the stalemated formal talks Sainteny agreed to transmit a letter from Nixon to Ho Chi Minh proposing such contacts.

When Sainteny returned to Paris in July, 1969, he discreetly passed this message to Xuan Thuy, head of the North Vietnamese delegation, for transmission to Hanoi. A positive response came back. On Aug. 4, 1969, Sainteny offered his apartment as a site for the first Kissinger meeting with the communists. Sainteny remained only to introduce the participants then, after showing them where the drinks were kept, departed.

At that first talk, those present were Kissinger, General Vernon Walters, U.S. military attaché and an expert French linguist, Xuan Thuy, and his interpreter. Neither Sainteny nor his home were employed for any subsequent contacts but the French government has helped with logistical and security support.

The French are deeply eager for peace but have no illusions that agreement will be easy. The two crucial obstacles, for Paris, are Hanoi's and Washington's military reluctance to stop fighting.

As France sees it, North Vietnam has been geared to a wartime economy for so long that it feels "installé dans la guerre" and almost afraid to

ON TARGET

You gotta think big. Here come these guys with this idea of building a 150-foot football player spanning the Interstate just north of Lincoln, filled with students, souvenirs and a revolving restaurant.

And what happens? Everybody gets all embarrassed and shuffles his feet and looks down at his toes and says "good grief." Musta been sneak day at some of the state institutions, they mutter. Or maybe it's the work of some organization of outpatients, they snicker.

Well, no wonder. What a piddly little plan.

Of course, what we ought to do is reshape the Capitol into a Big Red quarterback. He could be throwing a pass, the combination football and observation tower resting in his outstretched arm.

In his trunk, the operations of state government would hum away. The tax-collecting Department of Revenue could be assigned quarters in the back side; the Department of Administrative Services could be up there in the brain cavity, and both the governor and the Legislature could have a leg, with one foot on the ground.

The Capitol could be throwing a pass either to the First National Bank Building or what will be the new National Bank of Commerce building, each shaped to the form of a pass receiver.

First National can be Jerry List, and the new NBC structure can be Johnny Rodgers, farther downfield.

Jerry can look out from the Nebraska Club, awaiting the throw.

Let's see, some of the nearby

Don Walton
Spectacular
Plans

churches, old apartment houses and office buildings could provide pass protection.

Woodmen Accident, suitably dressed and padded, will protect one flank. And the evil enemy will never overpower St. Mary's cathedral up front.

Everything, of course, will have to be painted red. And Lincoln's downtown streets will be renamed as we lay out our football field. Let's make K the 30-yard-line. That means List would be on the 50... yes, that's right, at 13th and the 50-yard-line.

Rodgers would be waiting at 13th and the enemy 30-yard-line. And Love Library would be sitting there in the end zone. The Capitol could throw a deep one to the National Bank of Commerce which would then race to Love Library... backing in, of course.

We could find some use for the Stuart Building, too, probably as another deep receiver on a flood pattern. But the new Hilton will be too far west... out of bounds.

Perhaps the Hilton could be built in the form of Bob Devaney, watching from the sidelines, holding a combination clipboard and convention center in his hand. His cap could be an observation platform, and the restaurant could be located in the protruding jaw which sets tightly during a game. But there's one problem. The Hilton ain't gonna be big enough to be Bob Devaney. Add a few miles to the top, gents, and we'll be in business.

Let's get with it. It's gonna be great. The Capitol is fading back. St. Mary's is holding off the rush. Look at the National Bank of Commerce go. By golly, the Hilton is smiling.

Moving on to less serious matters, you may have noticed that Congress has adjourned. Senator Mansfield and Senator Smith made the traditional call on the President to inform him the Senate was ready to adjourn.

The senators exchanged pleasantries with the chief executive for about two minutes. The Associated Press reported. There apparently wasn't much pleasantries to exchange.

Well, Mr. President, we are ready to adjourn, one of them must have said.

I'm sorry... I see so many people.

Oh, that's all right, Mr. President. I'm Senator Mansfield from Montana... four electoral votes. And this is Senator Smith from Maine... four electoral votes.

Of course, how are you?

Okay. We're ready to adjourn.

Adjourn? The Senate, Mr. President. The Senate is ready to adjourn.

Oh, I see. Well, why don't you review for me the major accomplishments of your session before you go?

That must have been what took the two minutes.

JACK ANDERSON

Saigon Relief Funds Channeled Away

WASHINGTON — While South Vietnamese soldiers have been falling in battle, their manicured leaders in Saigon have been spending U.S. tax dollars on French brandy, Taiwan fruits and Japanese TV sets.

These elegant goods were purchased with special funds that should be used to bring necessities into South Vietnam for its impoverished citizenry. Around $194 million is set aside each year in an "open import budget" for these imports. A generous 88% of the money is provided by the American taxpayers through U.S. purchases of Vietnamese products.

The money is desperately needed for rice and medicine for families whose menfolk are off fighting the North Vietnamese. But State Department documents for fiscal year 1972 show that South Vietnamese officials have actually spent $21 million on luxury items like vintage wines, Italian motorcycles, expensive TV and radio sets, and gourmet foods of all kinds.

During one week when the North Vietnamese offensive was at its hottest, for example, Saigon bought $333,000 worth of brandy. In 10 months alone, this aristocratic liquor cost the hard-pressed Vietnamese people a whopping $6.3 million in U.S. funds.

What the desk-bound generals and officials don't use for themselves from this golden cornucopia is frequently sold on the black market to beef up their secret Swiss bank accounts.

The State Department has assured Congress, meanwhile, that Saigon is "Buying American." But the truth is that the South Vietnamese actually spent 44% of the $194 million in Japan. Only three per cent was spent on U.S. products, the documents show.

In long talks with AID officials, we were told these luxury items are heavily taxed by the Saigon government. Supposedly, this helps to control inflation. They also claimed that strict control of the $194 million open import budget is virtually impossible.

But this hand-wringing attitude does not square with the fact that AID has been able to keep a reasonably tight rein on how Saigon spends $330 million in direct U.S. aid.

But while the State Department has been keeping a sharp eye on the $330 million, it has let the $21 million in "open import" booze and bric-a-brac slip into Saigon almost unnoticed.

The Tesques Pueblo refused to join the Apaches and Comanches in their past wars against the white men. Now some Tesques are grumbling about missing the chance.

For they have been ensnared in the fine print of a white men's contract which gives up to 5,400 of their 15,000 tribal acres, much of their precious water and most of their dignity to a controversial land development firm.

The Tesques are dust bowl poor. Their average income is $1,000 a year. To better their miserable lot, they asked their guardians, the Interior Department, to help them lease some of their land in New Mexico to developers.

Having neither lawyers nor real estate men in the tribe, the Tesques depended almost entirely on the government to make sure they weren't scammed in the deal. A contract was signed on April 17, 1970.

Only now are the Indians learning that the Colonias de Santa Fe project of the Sangre de Cristo Development Company, will get hundreds of acres of their scarce water, not to mention the right to contaminate the land with septic tanks. The contract also gives the developers an escalating financial bonanza and other benefits as part of their 99-year lease.

Angrv over the discovery that they had been short-changed again by the whites, some Tesques Council leaders went to the young lawyers of the Native American Legal Defense and Education Fund.

The lawyers are now charging that none of the important terms of the contract were translated into the Tesques' language and that the Council wasn't even present when the Interior Department sewed up the deal with Sangre on water rights.

In fact, the dissident Council members claim the Tesques were told that only a golf course was planned on their lands, not a subdivision with 17,000 palefaces.

Lately the case has also taken a political turn. The Tesques' lawyer, former New Mexico governor Jack Campbell, has resigned following disclosures that he is associated with a law firm which also represented Sangre. Campbell admitted to us that two of the firm's attorneys helped him with his $5,000-a-year legal work for the tribe. But he insisted the conflict of interest charges are "insidious suggestions."

Sangre's corporate secretary, Fred Standley, also happens to be a former campaign manager for Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., who helped push through a bill permitting the lease to Sangre.

Standley, reached in Santa Fe, denied he had used Montoya's political influence to help the developers. Standley also swore that the Indians knew exactly what they were doing when they signed the contract. They got twice what other tribes received in similar land deals, he said. Montoya agreed there was no "fix."

So confident is the White House of victory in November that top aides have been asked to keep a Christmas date free for a gala victory celebration with President Nixon at San Clemente, Calif.

The President's confidence has not been shaken by the Watergate affair. Soviet wheat deal, ITT case and other scandals. He told visitors privately that he was distressed over the scandals but didn't think they would hurt him on election day. They were too complicated, he said, for the public to understand. He also said that the public memory on government scandals was short. He suggested that the voters have already forgotten, for example, what the ITT scandal was all about.

$375,000 Is Spent By Navy Studying Frisbees

Washington (AP) — Over a period of four years, the Navy spent $375,000 in a scientific study of Frisbees to see if the flight characteristics of these plastic toys could somehow be adapted for warfare. But it was no go.

From high atop Hurricane Mesa in Utah, scientists sent Frisbees and clay pigeons as well, spinning into the air. Tracking cameras monitored the flights from the 1,000-foot-high cliff.

As with all flight testing, the experiments were preceded by extensive wind-tunnel tests at the Navy Ammunition Depot at Crane, Ind.

The results of the tests were reported last month in a paper entitled "Adaptation of the Frisbee Flight Principle to the Delivery of Special Ordnance."

In the nonclassified paper, the Navy was careful to note throughout that Frisbee is "a registered trademark of the Whamco Manufacturing Co." of San Gabriel, Calif.

New Flares Wanted

According to Lt. Cmdr. Hugo A. Hardt, who took over the program two years ago, the Naval Air Systems Command was looking for a new way of delivering flares. Thus, he said, led it in 1967 to investigate, "an air-launched illumination system using a gyroscopically stabilized disc" — in other words, a Frisbee.

Navy ordnance experts at Crane used the data from the Frisbee flights tests to develop a disc-shaped flare which could be launched at night from airplanes to light up battlefields as the disc spun through the air.

Flares now used by the military burn for three to five minutes as they float to earth by parachute. Hardt said the Navy was hoping the Frisbee-type flare would do the same job at less cost than the $50 parachute flares.

But he said the Navy ran into problems. The scientists, he said, found that their burning characteristics caused them to "develop thrust and takeoff straight up like a rocket" instead of spinning off in horizontal flight.

"Monstrous Launcher"

Although it was felt this problem could be solved, he said the flares required "a monstrous and expensive launcher" which would have made the idea impracticable.

Also, while the experts were working with the new flares, low-light television was coming into use as a means of night-time airborne observation.

Hardt said he canceled the project last fall after deciding this combination of problems made development of a new flare unnecessary.

Between mid-1967 and last year when the program was halted the Navy spent a total of $375,000 he said in an interview.

Researchers are "always coming along with weird ideas and you never know what you can do with a thing like this," Hardt said. "It's possible the data could be used to develop a new type of guided bomb or skip bomb."

Soldiers In Philippines Smash Armed Uprising

Manila (AP) — Philippine marines and soldiers airlifted from Manila smashed Sunday the first organized armed uprising against the central government since martial law was imposed on the country five weeks ago. Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad announced.

Government forces killed 13 insurgents and captured one while they suffered nine dead, six wounded and one missing in almost 36 hours of fighting in Marawi in northwestern Mindanao.

The Marawi uprising is the biggest clash so far and the fifth known incident between government forces and the rebels in Mindanao since martial law was proclaimed. The insurgents were Moslems or Christians, Tatad said.

He reported the insurgents' strength was estimated to be 400 men, all well equipped.

Based on sketchy military reports, Tatad said the rebels first attacked the only bridge leading to Marawi from the airport early Saturday morning. They almost wiped out the seven-man military detachment guarding it.

The insurgents also rushed into Camp Amal Pakpak — about four miles away and occupied vacant training barracks, Tatad said. The camp is headquarters for the Lanao del Sur provincial command of the constabulary — national police — which had a depleted company in operation at the time.

The attackers hoisted a Maoist red flag over the barracks, then burned down the buildings, he reported, and at the same time others set fire to two commercial buildings in the predominantly Moslem-populated city's downtown district.

Nebraska Bakers Elect Lincoln Man To Board

The Nebraska Bakers Association Sunday elected Ed Klein of Lincoln and Jim Taylor of Wahoo to the organization's 7-member board of directors during a two-day conference at the Villager Motel.

A panel of three housewives were asked what they liked about services provided by the independent retail baker. The women said they considered quality before price but asked the association for the preservatives and packaging provided by wholesale bakers. Klein said. All three were independent retail baker. ## Hope Fades For More Survivors In Greek Air Crash Near Athens

Athens (AP) — Hope faded Sunday for finding more survivors from an Olympic Airways plane that crashed in the sea just off Athens airport during a blinding rain storm with 53 persons aboard. Seven men, including two foreigners, swam 500 yards to shore.

Helicopters and small craft continued to search the crash area. So far five bodies have been found. Launches from two U.S. Navy 6th Fleet vessels joined the search.

The plane, a Japanese-made YS11 twin engine turboprop, was on a flight from the island of Corfu, off Greece's northwestern coast, to Athens.

The short range aircraft is used by the Aristotle Onassis-owned airline for flights to the Greek islands. It sank only a few minutes after it hit the water just off shore in the choppy Saronic Gulf. Most of the dead are believed to be still trapped inside the plane.

The 53 persons aboard the aircraft included four crew members of whom three were saved, and seven vacationing foreigners. Two of the

Seed Analysts Serve Little-Known Role

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Three young ladies play a little-known role in the production of the state's major grain crops. They are Barbara Atkins, a seed analyst with the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association, and her two student assistants, Kathy Dissmeyer and Kathy Lorenz.

These girls do much of the testing of the certified seed samples sent to the seed lab for evaluation.

This is just one of a series of quality checks every lot of certified seed is put through by the Crop Improvement Association.

Dean Lancaster and Larry Svajgr, who operate the association program, believe that there is a market for much more certified seed in Nebraska than is currently being grown.

The association handles seed from about 200 varieties of every crop grown commercially in the state except sugar beets and potatoes. The best seed is produced and distributed by the sugar companies and potato seed is handled through a separate certification program in Nebraska.

Percentage Varies
The percentage of seed that is certified varies greatly from one crop to another.

Lancaster estimated that 99% of the dry beans, 25% of the soybeans and 18% of the wheat in the state were grown from certified seed.

We did get a 10% increase in certified soybean seed production this year but we could double production of certified soybean seed and find a market for it in the state," said Lancaster.

Many of the farmers who grow certified seed also process and sell their own seed. Others contract with processors for custom cleaning and bagging of the seed while still others arrange in advance for a market for the seed through companies who do the processing and bagging.

Lancaster views the certified seed program as being similar to the activities of livestock breed organizations which registered cattle, hogs and sheep.

Up To Farmer

"It is just a way to be sure you are getting the variety you want to grow. It is still up to the farmer to select the best variety for his particular farm," Lancaster said.

Becoming a certified seed grower is not terribly difficult but you shouldn't rush into it without finding out how the program works and you need to realize that your investment can be endangered by your field being rejected, according to Lancaster.

Lancaster listed several things that need to be considered before attempting to grow certified seed.

"Recognize reality. Remember that seed has to be sold as well as produced. Selling seed is a much larger problem than growing it," he said.

Requirements include a field that has not grown the same crop the preceding year. Some crops tend to make seed production on the field the next year difficult. Volunteer corn makes soybean seed production difficult but volunteer rye makes wheat seed production impossible.

Once you have established that the field is eligible for seed production you need to purchase foundation seed from the University of Nebraska or registered seed from a grower.

The planting machinery has to be carefully cleaned to be sure you don't accidentally mix some other variety of seed into your production field.

An application for inspection must be filed with the Crop Improvement Association.

The inspector then checks the field for weeds, for varietal purity and either passes or rejects the field.

Passing the field inspection is the first test. Then the crop has to be harvested with great care so the seed is not damaged. Injured seed germinates poorly resulting in poor seed quality.

The seed is then checked by the seed lab for weed seed, seed damage, varietal purity and germination plus several other less important tests.

Samples of each seed lot are grown out in special plots at the University Field Laboratory at Mead, and at special seed farms in Mexico and Hawaii.

If you get by all the hurdles you are home free and can have your seed bagged and tagged. Each tag will list the variety and quality of the seed plus the germination.

Program Fees

The cost of the seed certification program involves an inspection fee and a flat fee of 2.5% of the seed sale price. Lancaster estimated that the cost would amount to 5 to 8 cents a bushel on wheat and 8 to 10 cents for a bushel of soybeans. The farmer growing certified seed has to figure out what it costs him to grow it and figure in a reasonable profit in arriving at a price to charge for the seed.

"You have got to sell the seed to make a profit," emphasizes Lancaster, who feels that many farmers who have dropped out of seed growing have done so because they lacked skill in the art of marketing seed.

Both Lancaster and Svajgr believe that there is a market for more certified seed in Nebraska. "We shouldn't have to import seed for most of our crops. We ought to grow it ourselves," Svajgr said.

SEED ANALYST . . . Barbara, right, removes seed samples from testing chamber as Kathy Dissmeyer puts samples into germination chamber and Kathy Lorenz prepares seed for testing.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

People who stake horses along road ditches are really asking for trouble. We had one horse killed in our neighborhood last week and I have since spotted individual horses trotting along pulling ropes.

They are difficult to catch because they are scared of strangers and cars and a very real hazard on roads.

You may be surprised to learn that if your horse is hit on the road you not only lose the horse but you have the pleasure of paying for the damage to the auto and any hospital and doctor bills that result from the collision.

This may not be true in every single case but it is at least 99% true.

There is a heck of a lot more to caring for a horse than penning the animal inside a fence. He needs feed, care and some affection. Horses are at least as sensitive as a dog. They eat a lot more, as horse owners discover if they observe anything. Veterinarians say horses and dogs are the most abused animals they see.

Texas feedlot operators are downright jittery about a recent decision that put a large Texas sheep feeding operation out of business. It involved a complaint about air pollution and the feeder lost the first round.

According to news reports in livestock publications there was on measurements of air pollution, just an inspector who decided the feedlot stunk and made it stick.

Presumably, the case could go on to a higher court if the feeder has the financial resources to take it there.

If cutting out DES wasn't expensive enough for cattle feeders, there are warnings issued on Streptomycin residues.

The pattern is all too familiar of the DES thing. There are elaborate instructions on how to withdraw the animals from feed. Pressure is already building to remove the additive from livestock feed altogether.

The industry will fight it, of course, but I would hate to bet very much the cattlemen and the drug companies will win.

It may not make you feel any better, but the French farmers apparently sold their wheat early. Too early to cash in on higher world prices for wheat Germany is still holding a sizeable amount of free stocks and has applied to the common market for a subsidy to sell it to Russia at the world market price which is well below the price in Europe.

One thing is apparent. There are some stocks of wheat available in other nations that attract Russian grain buyers. If our pipeline to the ports gets plugged up they do have alternative sources of supply.

While wheat subsidies have been rescinded, both in this country and in the Common Market countries, there is still a 30-cent-a-hundredweight subsidy being paid on flour shipped out of the United States.

One of the big reasons for this subsidy is that we have to import some mill by-products because we use more by-products than we use flour. There have been suggestions that we find some industrial use for flour in the form of a starch kernel but little has come of it.

Average weight on steers going to market has been increasing. It costs more to feed heavy steers to prime quality than to feed light steers to choice but feeders are looking at feeder calves priced from 60 to 75 cents a pound and at a fat cattle market of 33 to 36 cents a pound and feel they can afford to hang on a little longer.

This along with predictions of higher fed cattle prices is serving to tighten up the supply of market-ready beef. Some feeders are so certain that beef will rise soon that they are buying choice 1,000-lb steers and putting them in the feedlot for additional weight and feeding to higher quality levels. The demand for feeders is so great that packers can't complete at present prices for fat cattle.

Right now ranching is more profitable than feeding cattle and for the next year or two appears much less risky.

Corn farmers are finding a surprising amount of hail damage. No big cuts in yields but a detectable reduction has turned up in a lot of fields. Apparently there were a series of small local hail storms that attracted little attention but did shred leaves to the point where they interfered with the crop to a minor extent.

Nine Persons Die In Traffic Mishaps

By United Press International
Nebraska's 1972 highway death toll climbed past the 400 mark during the weekend en route to what could become an all time record annual human carnage on state roads.

At least nine persons died in weekend traffic accidents in Nebraska, boosting this year's count to 402 dead, compared with 375 at the same time last year, when a record number of deaths were recorded on Nebraska highways.

The latest reported victim was Deborah B. Kirtrell, 19, Papillion, who was riding in a car driven by Daniel Carey, 18, Omaha, when it collided with another car at the intersections of Nebraska highways 50 and 370 six miles west of Papillion during a rain late Sunday afternoon.

State Patrolman G. K. Pittenger of Omaha, who investigated the mishap, said Carey's car went through a stop sign on 370 and was struck broadside by a car driven by Merle K. Slouffer, 59, Springfield.

Slouffer and his wife, Barbara, 51, the two occupants of that car, traveling north on Highway 50, were treated and released at an Omaha hospital.

An inmate of the Nebraska Penal Complex, Richard W. Worman, 23, was killed late Saturday morning when he fell off the tongue of a hay trailer being pulled by a tractor driven by Steve E. Norton, 21, also a prison inmate.

The accident occurred at 4100 Folsom Street near Pioneers Park in southwest Lincoln.

Killed late Saturday night when her car went out of control a half mile south of Fremont on U.S. 77 was Julie Roberts, 16, of Fremont.

Norbert Garza, 24, of Bellevue died early Saturday of injuries received when his car struck a utility pole.

A two-car crash about four miles west of Scribner on U.S. 275 claimed the lives of Delwin E. Lenton, 18, of Hadar and Roger Kouba, 19, of Route 3 at Norfolk.

The Nebraska State Patrol said a car driven by Lenton went onto the shoulder and then skidded into a car driven by Van Radosti, 18, of Creighton.

The patrol said Radosti's car caught fire and that members of the Scribner Fire Department rescued a girl from the vehicle.

Radosti and two passengers, Marlon Nacastek, 19, and Connie Donohoe, 19, both of O'Neill, were hospitalized with cuts and broken bones at the hospital in West Point.

Another two-car crash on a county road 12 miles southwest of Mead killed Ferdinand A. Holtz, 67, of Mead and Herman P. Thomas, 69, of Yutan.

Investigating officers said Holtz was riding in a car driven by Albert Pierce, 32, of Ashland and that Thomas was alone in his car.

Viola Douglas of Cortland was fatally injured in a two-vehicle collision on U.S. 30 inside the Fremont city limits.

Cooperative Plan Has Good Start To Field Public's Insurance Queries

By United Press International

A new cooperative program between community chambers of commerce and the state Insurance Department to aid the public in insurance-related problems is apparently off to a good start.

"We're now set up in four communities in the northeast portion of the state," State Insurance Director James Jackson reported. "We're trying to do it on a step-by-step basis because we want to catch our mistakes early before we get too involved."

Under the program, announced earlier this month by the governor's office, about 25 chambers throughout the state will serve as clearing houses for individual questions and complaints on insurance matters.

"The chamber will answer questions primarily relating to company licensing and various financial facts about a company," Jackson said. "But as to almost anything over and above that, the question will be referred to the department's claims and inquiries division."

3,000 Letters

The insurance director said his department is currently averaging more than 3,000 written inquiries a year and the number of telephone inquiries has never been estimated.

Although the amount of requests for information from the department probably would not decrease, the program would make it easier for the citizen to relay his question, he said.

"It's just a convenience measure for the people so they don't have to come clear to Lincoln or call at their own expense or write," he said. "There will be somewhere in their own community where they can register questions and complaints and get them handled more conveniently."

Jackson said members of his department will spend the next few weeks visiting chambers individually to explain the program and drop off appropriate materials.

Few Inquiries

He said so far, only a few inquiries have been directed through the four chambers.

already set up under the new program.

"But it's a matter of public awareness of the availability of the service," he said. "I think as time goes on and we report information back to the chambers so they can see it actually works, the volume will increase."

No real problems with the approach have cropped up yet, he added.

"The only one I would anticipate is keeping the public aware of the service and keeping the chambers enthused and actively participating in it," he said.

Bullet Wound Killing Girl, 17, Thought Suicide

Omaha (UPI) — Linda Sue Morgan, 17, of Omaha was found dead in her apartment and police said it appeared a bullet wound to the head was self-inflicted.

Linda Sue's sister and roommate, Mrs. Pamela Hill, told officers she heard a shot and went to investigate. Mrs. Hill said she tried to take a 38-caliber pistol from her sister but that Miss Morgan pointed the weapon at her and ordered her from the room.

A little later, she said, she heard a shot and found her sister dead.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

While American farmers are reaping a bumper harvest nationally, the farmers in Argentina are scraping together what has to be described as a meager harvest.

Mother nature has dropped virtually every kind of natural weather and insect problem she could think up on the farmers of Argentina, normally a major exporter of both corn and sorghum.

This should provide some opportunity for our exporters to move some surplus American corn and mulo into Spain, Japan and Italy which have been customers for our southern neighbor.

It is certain to be a one time sale because the Argentine government is asking for expanding acreage of most of their crops next year but it should help maintain good feed for several months.

The signing of shipping agreements between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. should help unplug the grain pipeline to Russia. A shipping shortage was developing unless higher priced American shipments were used. The opening of additional ports to Russian ships will also serve to distribute the chore of loading ships and reduce the problems with both labor and limited facilities at a number of ports.

The opportunity for expanded sales of both soybeans and feed grains to Russia and Eastern European countries is now much better.

Two Men Held For Threatening Woman Driver

Two California men were jailed Sunday evening after they threatened a woman with a knife and tried to steal her car, according to the Nebraska State Patrol.

One of the men then pulled a knife on the woman and tried to steal the car, but the other man apparently talked him out of it, the patrol said.

The men were arrested for assault and attempted auto theft, according to the patrol.

A Sunday Bride

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon on Sunday, Oct. 22, the marriage of Miss Cathy Sue Kushner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Kushner, to Joseph Berchenko, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Berchenko of Atlanta, Ga., was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents. The lines of the service were read by Rabbi Maurice Pomerantz of Seattle, Wash., and Rabbi Nasson Goldstein of Congregation Tifereth Israel in Lincoln.

Miss Julie Kushner was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant.

Dr. David Perling of Atlanta, Ga., served Mr. Berchenko as best man.

The bride chose a gown of silk faille in the antique ivory tone for her wedding. Designed in the Empire mode the bodice was patterned with pink satin ribbon, widely bordered with lace, and the ribbon and lace motif contoured the square neckline and to ornament the cuffs of the long sleeves. Beneath the fitted bodice the softly gathered skirt, deeply bordered with lace and ribbon, was floor-length. Her full length veil of ivory-toned illusion was held to her head with a Camelot cap, and she carried a single rose, encircled with gypsophelia.

Mr. Berchenko and his bride will reside in University City, Mo.

MISS MARILYN SVAJGR

Announcement is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Svajgr of Tobias, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Marilyn JaAnn, to Robert C. Kratochvil, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Kratochvil of Swanton.

Saturday, Dec. 9 has been chosen as the date of the wedding.

Miss Svajgr was graduated from the Lincoln School of Commerce and is now is working in the offices of the Lincoln Benefit Life Co.

Mr. Kratochvil is associated with the Peterson Manufacturing Co., in DeWitt, and also is engaged in farming.

AROUND TOWN

This is the Big Red season, of course, and somehow when the games are in the home stadium guests are expected — thousands of them.

But it is nice to know that Lincoln has guests when there isn't a home game — as was the case the past weekend. No game at home—but there were guests.

Arriving from Clinton, Iowa, on Friday evening to spend several days as the house guests of their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Miller, were Miss Esther Jensen and Gilbert Jensen.

The approaching weekend will be a different story — It will be the Homecoming game — and with Oklahoma State.

But the game is at the far end of the week, and between now and then there are other things that will attract people to Lincoln.

There is that always anticipated, annual antique show that St. Matthews Episcopal Church sponsors annually. We hear that of the 17 dealers who will be showing, only one is from Lincoln — That makes a guest list of 16 antique dealers.

And by the way, the antique show opens on Wednesday morning and continues through Friday.

And the younger generation will be happy to know that the Haunted House, the brain child of the Lincoln Community Playhouse Guild, will be opening its creaking doors in plenty of time for Halloween celebrations.

This also is the time that the Lincoln Symphony Guild is spending considerable time planning its annual Headress Ball —

And so — activity in Lincoln goes on — and on.

Evening Church Ceremonies

The marriage of Miss Gail Bortz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Bortz, to LeRoy A. Stumme, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stumme of Beatrice, took place on Sunday evening, Oct. 22, at the Westminster Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Robert MacLennan solemnized the 7 o'clock ceremony.

Miss Kathy Bortz of Manhattan, Kan., was the maid of honor, and completing the attendant foursome were bridesmaids Miss Peggy Stumme of Beatrice, Miss Chris Amerine of Holsington, Kan., and Miss Patu Pierson.

David Stumme of Beatrice served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Tim Young of Beatrice; Robert Kyle, Hawthorn, N.J.; Galen Bortz, Robert Bortz, Robert Wietzel, Robert Fredericks and William Brandt.

The gown worn by the bride was fashioned of white chiffon, accented with embroidery. The embroidery patterned the yoke of the bodice and capped the Juliet sleeves which were cuffed with Venise lace. The embroidery motif was repeated in a daisy pattern to ornament the front of the gown from the yoke to the hemline of the skirt. The gown was given back interest with a train of the embroidered chiffon which extended from the back yoke into cotton length. Her elbow-length, tiered veil of illusion was held in place with a crown of pearls, and she carried a bouquet of blue roses; lavender chrysanthemums and gypsophelia.

Upon their return from a honeymoon trip to Hawaii Mr. Stumme and his bride will reside at 4621 Stockwell, Apt. 5, in Lincoln.

The bride is a graduate of the Lincoln Technical College where she specialized in dental assisting. Mr. Stumme is associated with Safeway Stores as assistant manager.

At 7 o'clock on Saturday evening, Oct. 21, the wedding of Miss Ellen Catherine Wickham, daughter of Mrs. William F. Wickham, and Charles Thomas Roach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Roach, Jr., of Boulder, Colo., took place at the Cathedral of the Risen Christ. Msgr. Clarence J. Crowley solemnized the ceremony.

Miss Judy Wickham was her sister's maid of honor, and the foursome of bridesmaids included Miss Peggy Hamersky, Miss Kathy Lehr, Miss Mary Schneider and Miss Mary Claire Franssen.

Dennis Berry served Mr. Roach as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Keith Ball, Greg Ahlman, Byron Van Zandt, David Wolfe and Greg Ahlman.

The bride appeared in a gown of embroidered with satin, with touches of lace. The lace contoured the stand-up collar, and ornamented the cuffs of the long, full sleeves. Beneath a belted waistline the softly gathered skirt was in the A-line mode. A Juliet cap of embroidered satin held to the head her floor-length veil, and she carried a colonial bouquet of peach-toned sweetheart roses, and gypsophelia.

After a honeymoon trip to Colorado, Mr. Roach and his bride will reside at 1417 West Harbour Blvd., in Lincoln.

Mr. Roach is a former student at the University of Nebraska.

MISS SUSAN GEIGER

Announcement is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Florian Geiger of Ulysses, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Susan Jean, to Gregory Hrabon, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hrabon of Dwight.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Dec. 23, and the ceremony will be solemnized at the Immaculate Conception Church in Ulysses.

Busily engaged in weighing and packaging the nuts are, left to right, Mrs. Gertrude Bates, Mrs. Donald Downing, Mrs. Lawrence Tomsyck, Mrs. Andrew Sullivan, Norma Kelle and Mrs. Val Mills.

Lincoln's Soroptimist Club is one of the most service-oriented groups in town — and it proved it on Saturday, Oct. 21.

On that day, the members tackled two very important annual projects — attending the registration and reservation desks at the Governor's Youth Safety Conference, and uncrating and sacking nutmeats for raising funds to be applied to the group's many community activities.

For the sixth consecutive year, the Soroptimists assisted with the Governor's conference which, this year, was held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education — as a part of the Soroptimist's youth safety program. Among the members who attended to registrations and reservations at the conference were Mrs. Hugo F. Srb, president; Mrs. C. M. Stewart, safety chairman; Mrs. Marvin Bonebright, Miss Selma B. Anderson, Mrs. Margaret M. Davis, and Mrs. Joe Herber.

Meanwhile, in the other part of town, other Soroptimists were tackling the other project — sacking nutmeats at the home of Mrs. Val Mills, assistant ways and means chairman. The proceeds from the sale of the nutmeats will be used for the club's forthcoming projects — including participation in an expanded international Fellowship program; purchase of the filmstrip-cassette entitled, "To Nebraska, The Great American Desert — Love Notes From A Native Son," a film which will be used throughout the community; and participation in financing of a new Mobile Heart Unit.

Among those who lent their efforts for the fund-raising project were Mrs. Bernice Sullivan, club director; Mrs. Lawrence L. Tomsyck, vice president; Mrs. Elaine J. Long, ways and means chairman; Miss Patricia M. Aron, Mrs. Gertrude A. Bates, Mrs. Ruby J. Duval, Mrs. Norma J. Kelle, Mrs. Shirley M. Downing, Mrs. Doyle E. Williamson.

Abby: His Job Is Morale Building

Abigail Van Bruen

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing a doctor about my nerves, and I guess you could say I have developed a crush on him.

Abby, he is the kindest most understanding man I have ever known. Just being near him gives me such a calm feeling. I hate to leave his office. We are about the same age (50) and he is married, too. He knows my marriage is a shambles because that is part of my problem and I've discussed it frankly with him.

He advised me to spend a weekend at a resort motel with a pool and get away from the pressures of home for a few days. Do you think he was hinting that he would like to meet me there? He said,

"Doctors have pressures, too, you know."

When I told him I felt unappreciated and unattractive, he patted my hand and assured me that I was a very attractive woman that ANY man could appreciate. Could he have meant that HE could appreciate ME?

When I told him my sex life was dull and unfulfilling he said I should be more aggressive, and not wait to be pursued. Was he trying to encourage me subtly?

Should I tell him how I feel about him? I have a hunch he has a special interest in me, but I don't want to make a complete idiot of myself.

DREAMING OF DOC

DEAR DREAMING: It's highly unlikely that your doctor has more than a professional interest in you. Many women get crushes on their doctors. It's a combination of gratitude, admiration and hero-worship, but it's only temporary, so if I were you, I wouldn't tell him how I feel about him. Follow his advice, but don't take it personally, dear.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	Pass
Dble	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — king of clubs.

One swallow doesn't make a summer and one deal doesn't prove a theory, but here is a hand played in the finals of the 1971 Spingold team of four championship that demonstrates the danger of the light opening bid.

When Kaplan and Kay — one of the outstanding pairs in the world — were North-South, the bidding went as shown and Kay became declarer at one club doubled.

West led the king of clubs, forcing out the ace, and Kay played a spade, losing the nine to the ten. East returned the ten of hearts, South's jack losing to the queen, and West drew the adverse trumps before returning the jack of spades.

This permitted East to cash four more spades which, in addition to West's four trump tricks and the A-Q of hearts, resulted in declarer's going down five — 1,400 points. The only tricks South made were his two aces.

Kay paid an extraordinarily large penalty for his opening bid. The odds against such a catastrophe ensuing from his club bid must have been well over 10,000 to 1, but in the actual case this frightening long shot came home to roost.

At the second table, the North-South pair stayed out of trouble when the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
1 ♣	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

West wound up making four notrump for 180 points, so that the Kaplan-Kay team lost 1,220 points on the deal. It was a mighty bitter pill to swallow, and eventually the hand cost Kaplan and Kay the championship.

Japanese Motif For Fifty-Fifty Party

The rapid tempo of the jet age, combined with the current nostalgic trend, has left many of us bewildered.

However, the members of the Fifty-Fifty Dance Club are right on top of things, traveling. Rather than selecting a nostalgic theme, such as

"Around the World in 80 Days," for this season's evenings of dining and dancing, the group chose a theme more in tune with the times—"Around the world in 14 Nights and Two Days."

For its first dance of the season, which took place on Tuesday evening, Oct. 17, the dancing club elected to "fly to Japan." The ballroom at the Elks Club took on the appearance of a Japanese garden for the gala festivity.

The officers and advisory committee members — Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Anderson, president; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fischer, first vice president; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wells, second vice president; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Macy, secretary-treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Aron, and Mr. and Mrs. Clair Shuman — assumed the duty of arranging for the season's premier dance.

OAKLAND CAPTURES SERIES, 3-2

... Tenace, Bando Doubles Account For Winning Run

Cincinnati (AP) — When baseball's championship trophy was brought into the Oakland A's dressing room Sunday, the only thing missing from a wet, wild welcome was the club's mascot — a 1,400-pound mule named Charley O.

Owner Charles O. Finley, pouring champagne, embraced Manager Dick Williams and planted a giant kiss on his skipper's cheek.

"I love you," exclaimed Finley, as he chased clubhouse visitors with a bottle of champagne at the ready.

The A's claimed the crown and the handsome trophy that goes with it by hanging on doggedly for a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati in the seventh and deciding game of the 1972 World Series.

Williams accepted the trophy from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and handed it to Sal Bando, captain of the club. It was consecutive sixth-inning doubles by Series hero Gene Tenace and Bando that drove in the deciding runs.

"I saw one of those trophies five years ago," said Williams, whose 1967 Boston Red Sox lost the Series to St. Louis in seven games. "It's a beautiful thing. It belongs right here and I'm glad to see my captain holding it."

Bando's grip on the trophy didn't come easily. It took some pressure relief pitching from bullpen ace Rolie Fingers to preserve the victory and when Pete Rose lined to Joe Rudi for the game's last out, Finley hopped atop the dugout to celebrate.

Things grew steadily wilder after that. The sellout crowd of 56,040, largest ever to see a baseball game in Riverfront Stadium, left quietly as the A's joyously celebrated their triumph in this 69th World Series.

The last time the A's won a world championship was 1930 — 42 years and two cities ago. The team played in Philadelphia then and moved to Kansas City in 1955 before transferring to Oakland in 1968.

That's almost as many cities as handyman Tenace can play positions. The A's regular catcher was at first base in Manager Williams' shuffled lineup Sunday but the switch didn't affect his hitting.

Tenace, who batted .225 during the regular season, ran his world series average to .348 with two run-scoring hits. He drove in only 32 runs during the regular season but nine of Oakland's 16 in the Series. He also tied a World Series record with four home runs and simply wore out Cincinnati's pitching.

But it took a clutch relief job by Fingers, the reliever with the handlebar mustache, to preserve the victory.

The Reds were down by two runs when Rose opened the eighth with a single, only the third hit for Cincinnati. Williams went to his bullpen to left-hander Ken Holtzman against lefty Joe Morgan, but the strategy backfired when Morgan doubled past first base, sending Rose to third.

Again Williams went to the mound and this time he brought in Fingers. Pinch-hitter Joe Hague popped out, and Williams was back at the mound to discuss what the A's should do with Johnny Bench, the major league's home run and runs-batted-in king.

The decision defied baseball tradition. Rather than pitch to the slugger, Williams ordered him walked, putting the winning run on first base.

Tony Perez, who had doubled earlier in the game, lofted a fly ball to right and Rose scored. But that was the last run the Reds were to get. Denis Menke flied out, leaving Morgan, the potential tying run stranded on third base.

In the ninth, Fingers got the first two outs and then hit pinch-hitter Darrell Chaney, prolonging the tension. But Rose ended it quickly with his drive to Rudi, setting off the celebration.

As the field emptied, Bench walked across from the Reds' dugout and embraced Reggie Jackson, the injured Oakland slugger, who was forced to sit out the series. It was a dramatic conclusion to a drama packed afternoon.

The A's seemed charged up right from the start and picked up a first-inning run on a fielding blunder by center fielder Bobby Tolan. Tolan misjudged Angel Mangual's one-out drive and the ball glanced off his glove for a three-base error.

Rudi flied out for the second out, but Tenace bounced a bad-hop single off the artificial AstroTurf infield and the A's were ahead. The ball hit the seam of the turf in front of the dirt patch at third base and bounced high off Menke's glove.

John "Blue Moon" Odum made that single run stand up until the fifth when Perez opened with his double and Cesar Geronimo walked with one out. When Odum fell behind pitching to Dave Concepcion, Williams waved in Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who completed the walk, loading the bases.

Here Sparky Anderson, manager of the Reds, went to his bench for a pinch hitter, Hal McRae. McRae tagged a long fly ball to center field, backing Mangual to the wall and missing a grand slam homer by perhaps 10 feet.

McRae slammed his helmet angrily as he returned to the dugout but the Reds were happy because now the score was tied. It didn't stay that way long.

Bert Campaneris opened the A's sixth with a single up the middle, breaking an 0-for-21 slump. Mangual sacrificed and Rudi bounced out, moving Campaneris to third. Now it was Tenace's turn again, and again he delivered.

This time the hero tagged a double into the left-field corner, scoring the go-ahead run. Here, Williams lifted his hottest hitter for pinch-hitter Allen Lewis and a moment later the A's had another run.

Bando, Oakland's leading run-producer during the regular season but without an RBI to this point in the series, lofted a long fly to center. Again, Tolan seemed to misjudge the ball and got a late start. It fell for a double and a 3-1 lead.

The Reds tried to come back in their half of the sixth, when Bench reached on a two-out error by Campaneris and Perez walked. The runners advanced on a wild pitch, but Menke flied out to end the threat.

The Reds made their last gasp in the eighth.

—A's 'OVERMANAGED'—

Right Decisions Says Williams

Cincinnati (AP)—Oakland's Dick Williams, who virtually wore out a pair of spikes in the World Series, had the last laugh Sunday when he said sarcastically, "I overmanaged."

The A's manager went against the percentages time and time again in the seven games with the Cincinnati Reds—and he always seemed to be right.

"It was beautiful," he yelled in the A's happy clubhouse after the 3-2 seventh game victory over the Reds.

Williams' last managing decision of 1972 was to change his mind, he revealed.

With two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning, A's reliever Rolie Fingers hit pinch hitter Darrell Chaney, bringing up Reds' star Pete Rose.

"I went to the mound to take out Rolie," Williams admitted. "But my catcher, Dave Duncan, told me, 'He's throwing the tar out of the ball. Leave him in.'"

Williams, who said, "I think I only went to the mound 10 times today," said okay.

Fingers rushed into the clubhouse yelling, "Where's the champagne?" A few minutes later, after getting Rose to fly out.

Vida Blue, who would have pitched to Rose if the manager had his way, shouted, "Where's my check?"

Then the green bottles—matching one of the A's uniform colors—began popping. Owner Charles O. Finley wept as his baseball players laughed and sprayed each other.

"Greenie went nine! Greenie went nine!" a group of players chanted as they drenched second baseman Dick Green, who usually plays only a few innings before being replaced by a pinch hitter.

"I'm not used to going all the way. That's why I struck out my last two times up," said Green, who totaled six hits in the series.

Williams threw a new lineup at the Reds in the seventh game because, after Saturday's 8-1 loss, he decided, "I just had to get some punch in there."

The most drastic move was to bench left-handed cleanup hitter Mike Epstein even

Redskins Scalp Cowboys, 24-20

... DALLAS DROPS TO SECOND IN DIVISION

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Charley Harraway capped an 88-yard drive with a 13-yard touchdown sprint, lifting the Washington Redskins to a 24-20 National Football League triumph Sunday over the Dallas Cowboys.

The victory was Washington's fifth in six starts and vaulted the Redskins into the lead in the National Conference's Eastern Division. The Cowboys dropped to second in the division with a 4-2 record.

Veteran quarterback Sonny Jurgensen engineered the game-winning drive connecting with wide receiver Roy Jefferson for 26 yards and running back Larry Brown for 18 yards then ran and caught for three yards each before snaring another Jurgensen pass good for 16 yards bringing the Redskins to the Dallas 17. Harraway bolted four yards before scoring the winning tally on a sweep around left end.

In other NFL action it was New York Jets 24, Baltimore 20, Philadelphia 21, Kansas City 20, Atlanta 10, Green Bay 9, Miami 24, Buffalo 23, Cleveland 23, Houston 17, Pittsburgh 33, New England 3 and Detroit 34. San Diego 6.

Other scores were New York Giants 27, St. Louis 21; Denver 30, Oakland 23; Los Angeles 15, Cincinnati 12 and San Francisco 20, New Orleans 20.

Gero Yepremian kicked his longest field goal ever—a 54-yarder—as the Dolphins remained the only undefeated team in the NFL with a 6-0 record. Miami trailed 13-7 at the half after Ken Lee turned a pass interception into a Buffalo touchdown and John Leypoldt booted two field goals. Mercury Morris ran for the Dolphins' first-half score and ran for the final touchdown in the fourth quarter after Miami held a 17-6 lead.

Pete Liske rifled three touchdown passes—two of them to Harold Jackson—as the Eagles snapped their five-game losing streak with an upset triumph. Liske lofted a pass to Ben Hawkins for a touchdown play covering 67 yards early in the first period, ending a nine-quarter touchdown drought for Philadelphia.

Spider Lockhart scored on a 20-yard pass interception as the Giants erased a 21-7 St. Louis halftime lead for their fourth consecutive victory. Pete Gogolak added field goals of 16 and 43 yards after the Giants had tied it 21-21.

Joe Namath combined with Eddie Bell on an 83-yard pass play with 1:03 remaining as the Jets ruined the debut of Baltimore Coach John San-dukus. The Colts grabbed a 20-17 lead one minute before Namath's game-winning bomb on a 13-yard touchdown pass from Marty Domres to Jim O'Brien.

David Ray booted a 32-yard field goal as time ran out after the Rams charged from their own 14-yard line. The winning drive was ignited by Roman Gabriel's 17-yard aerial to Lance Rentzel.

Quarterback Mike Phipps plunged over from one yard out with 3:36 remaining as the Browns bounced back from pass plays of 80 and 51 yards by Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini. Phipps' plunge capped an 80-yard drive he ignited with a 43-yarder to Fair Hooker.

Mel Farr plunged for touchdowns of one and two yards and Greg Landry passed for a TD and ran for another as the Lions pulled into a first-place tie with Green Bay in the National Conference Central Division.

Atlanta rallied on a one-yard scoring run by Art Malone and a 24-yard field goal by Bill Bell after rookie kicking artist Chester Marcol gave Green Bay a 9-0 lead with field goals of 44, 32 and 35 yards.

The Steelers dumped New England quarterback Jim Plunkett six times for losses of 72 yards. Roy Gerela kicked field goals of 19, 22, 35 and 33 yards as the Steelers handed the Patriots their fourth defeat against two triumphs.

Bruce Gossett's 36-yard field goal with three seconds left lifted the 49ers into their deadlock with the Saints and climaxed an eight-play, 65-yard march. New Orleans had moved ahead when Archie Manning fired a 30-yard touchdown pass to Dave Parks with 1:54 left.

Charley Johnson threw two touchdown passes and Floyd Little tossed for a score and ran for another as the Broncos amassed a 24-3 halftime lead and went on for the upset victory.
